Some viewers were left concerned after JadyAnh's recent Twitch stream was disrupted by a stalker who made threatening phone calls to both her and her father during the broadcast on January 17th. JadyAnh said a stalker called her using her dad's phone number while she was live-streaming on Twitch. The caller threatened to harm her father unless she showed her breasts on the platform. JadyAnh reported this incident and confirmed that her father, Harvey Hung Ngo, was safe the whole time. Her father even responded to a Twitter post where JadyAnh shared details about the stalker's demands, assuring everyone that he is fine and will remain so for a long time. JadyAnh tweeted about the terrifying experience, stating that the stalker called her while she was streaming and demanded she show her breasts on Twitch. If she refused, he claimed to have killed her father, who was allegedly lying tied up on the floor. The stalker also threatened JadyAnh with derogatory language and even shared her address to intimidate her further. After trying to reason with the stalker, JadyAnh hung up and called the police when she realized that her mods had contacted her uncle, who then spoke to her father. Her father was found safe and asleep during this time. JadyAnh shared these details on Twitter to avoid any misunderstandings and thanked everyone for their support. This incident is not the first time JadyAnh has faced issues with a stalker while streaming. In November, she reported being delivered pizzas repeatedly and having a fake gas leak reported in her building. It's unclear if these incidents were from the same person. Several other streamers have also shared their experiences with stalkers and "scary" incidents, including Valkyrae, Fuslie, Sweet Anita, Gabbie Hanna, Mr Beast, Jenna, and more.
