Bank of america alaska airlines credit card benefits guide

You earn miles when you use your card for purchases, minus certain exceptions such as balance transfers and cash advances. The following transactions are excluded from earning miles: fees, interest charges, and fraudulent transactions. Earn 1 mile per dollar for every net purchase charged to the card each billing cycle. For eligible gas stations, cable services, and local transit, you earn 2 miles per dollar. These include service stations, automated fuel dispensers, electric vehicle charging, marinas, and tolls. For Alaska Airlines purchases, such as flights, inflight food, and vacation packages, you earn 3 miles per dollar. However, if purchased through a third-party merchant, it will not earn 3 miles per dollar. Miles are credited to the primary cardholder's Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan account. You also earn bonus miles at participating restaurants for every $2 spent. Visit mileageplan.rewardsnetwork.com for the list of participating restaurants. Miles can be redeemed for award travel, upgrades, and hotel accommodations on alaskaair.com. Additionally, if you have a qualifying account with us, a 10% bonus will be added to miles earned per dollar spent on net purchases. Qualifying Account benefits include Relationship Bonus Miles for net purchases made within a specific timeframe, as well as an annual Companion Fare Benefit. To earn miles, cardholders must maintain a minimum average daily balance or make deposits/withdrawals within a 90-day period. For the Companion Fare benefit, primary cardholders must spend $6,000 on net purchases, and the anniversary will coincide with the billing month of the annual fee. Once qualifying, the primary cardholder receives a Companion Fare code that can be redeemed for a discounted airfare on Alaska Airlines, subject to certain restrictions and requirements. Primary cardholder must be an Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan " " member to qualify for this benefit, but baggage restrictions apply. To receive priority boarding, primary cardholder's Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan " " number must be included in reservation and airfare purchased with Alaska Airlines credit card. Cardholders can also enjoy 20% rebate on food, beverages, and Wi-Fi onboard purchases, as well as $100 discount on an annual Alaska Lounge+ Membership. Cardholders will receive statement credits for qualifying transactions within 7 days from transaction posting date, but offer may not be applied retroactively and no refunds will be issued. Offer is not applicable for guests who already receive 1 or more free checked bags. New cardholders eligible approximately 2-3 weeks after account opening. The Delta SkyMiles Gold Amex Card offers a free checked bag on Delta flights and earns 2 miles per dollar on purchases at US supermarkets and restaurants. It also provides a $200 flight credit after spending $10,000 in a year and has a welcome bonus of 50,000 miles with $2,000 spend within the first six months. The card's annual fee is $0 for the first year, then $150. In contrast to Alaska Airlines' Mileage Plan program, which offers higher earning rates on flights, the Delta SkyMiles Gold Amex Card has a more straightforward and easily redeemable flight credit of up to $200 per calendar year. Given article text here The AAdvantage Aviator Red World Elite Mastercard offers rewards flights regardless of which type of miles you collect. This makes American Airlines a worthwhile option, especially given its robust network in the eastern U.S. cardholders earn 2 miles per dollar on eligible American Airlines purchases and 1 mile per dollar on all other purchases. Furthermore, earning loyalty points towards status is a significant advantage when spending on American Airlines' credit cards. Perks include free checked bags, preferred boarding, and statement credits for in-flight Wi-Fi purchases. The Aviator Red card offers an annual $99 companion certificate if spent at $20,000 or more during the cardholder year. For those looking for a credit card with rewards on air travel without airline commitment, consider the Chase Sapphire Preferred Card. For $95 annual fee, it earns 5 points per dollar on travel purchased through Chase Travel, 3 points per dollar on dining and streaming services, 2 points per dollar on other travel purchases, and 1 point per dollar on other purchases. Redemption options include transferring to several airlines, including British Airways, or redeeming for cash back, gift cards, and other awards. While in-flight benefits are not included, the Sapphire Preferred offers valuable travel insurance and an annual statement credit towards hotels booked through Chase Travel. A welcome bonus is also available: 100,000 bonus points after spending $5,000 on purchases within three months of account opening. Balance Transfers and Cash Advances, fees, interest charges, fraudulent transactions, and certain other charges are excluded from mile earnings. Earn miles on Net Purchases: - 1 Mile per $1 on base purchases - 2 Miles (1 bonus + 1 base) for Gas, Cable & Streaming Services, Local Transit, Ride Share, and Alaska Airlines tickets - 3 Miles (2 bonus + 1 base) for eligible Alaska Airlines purchases made through the website or by phone Bonus Miles: - Earn 1 Mile per $2 spent at participating restaurants via Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan Dining Mile Usage: Redeem miles for Alaska Airlines award travel, upgrades, hotel stays Relationship Bonus Miles: 10% bonus on mile earnings when you have an active Qualifying Account (Bank of America checking or savings account with a high average daily balance) Annual Companion Fare Benefit: With each anniversary that you spend $6,000 or more on net purchases posted to your credit card statement, you'll qualify for a Companion Fare code. This offer coincides with the month your annual fee is billed, usually every 12 months from the open date. Once qualified, your companion fare code will be credited to your Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan account within two billing cycles. The code can be redeemed on Alaska Airlines flights starting at $122 for a round-trip or one-way coach ticket when traveling with another guest who also booked their airfare on alaskaair.com. With the Alaska Airlines Visa Signature credit card, up to 6 guests traveling on the same reservation can enjoy priority boarding. To qualify for this benefit, airfare must be purchased with an eligible credit card and the Primary cardholder's Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan number must be included in their reservation. This benefit is only available on flights marketed by Alaska Airlines or its partners, Horizon Air and SkyWest. Cardholders and their guests can board the plane before general boarding, after elite status members and pre-board groups. However, bank of america is not responsible for providing this benefit. New cardholders will be eligible for priority boarding within 2-3 weeks after opening a new card account or upgrading from another credit card. Additionally, cardholders can enjoy a 20% rebate on onboard purchases, such as food and beverages, with a statement credit posted to their credit card account within 7 days. The Alaska Lounge+ membership discount offers $100 off an annual membership purchase. The Alaska Airlines Visa Signature credit card also comes with a valuable welcome offer: earn 60,000 Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan miles and an Alaska Airlines companion fare after spending $3,000 within the first 90 days of account opening. The Alaska Airlines Credit Card offers a business class adventure or can be redeemed for domestic flights. As of 2025, award flights on partner airlines will count towards elite status. The card also includes a companion fare worth hundreds of dollars and a 30% flight discount code at account opening. The perks associated with the Alaska Airlines Credit Card make it a valuable option, even for occasional flyers. One of its benefits is that the companion fare on economy tickets is valid for travel anywhere Alaska Airlines flies, including destinations like Hawaii and Costa Rica. This companion earns miles and is eligible for upgrades, providing good value as demonstrated by consistent savings experienced with this feature. The card also offers a free checked bag for the primary cardholder and up to six guests on the same reservation, which can save $70 per person roundtrip. Authorized users on the card can receive this benefit as well when purchasing tickets with the card. This perk alone could justify the annual fee for frequent flyers without elite status. Another advantage is priority boarding, which ensures there's space in the overhead bin for bags and allows authorized users to share this benefit with family members. The card also offers 20% back on Alaska Airlines inflight purchases, including food, beverages, and Wi-Fi, with no limit to how often this can be used. Additionally, using the card to pay for an Alaska Lounge+ annual membership comes with a $100 discount, reducing the cost from $500-600 annually. This membership provides access to all Alaska Lounges and nearly 100 partner lounges worldwide. As someone who doesn't fly Alaska Airlines frequently, but has consistently gotten good value from this card, it's clear that these perks make it worth considering even for those with less frequent travel needs. Consider getting the Alaska Airlines Visa Business card if you're due for an upgrade. The card offers 60,000 Mileage Plan miles and a companion fare from $122 as part of its welcome bonus, provided you meet the $4,000 spend requirement within 90 days. The perks don't stop there - you'll also get a free first checked bag, savings on flight purchases, and an annual companion fare opportunity. What's more, the card is reportedly easy to be approved for, even if you've had it before, allowing you to take advantage of the welcome bonus multiple times. Additionally, you can earn two annual companion certificates. Read our full review of the Alaska Airlines Business Card to learn more.
