Looking for companionship during a business trip to Singapore, the poster has been researching online and is interested in meeting non-professional women who can provide a genuine experience. They prefer not to engage with those who turn tricks daily and are looking for someone who can support them financially without having to work on the streets. The ideal candidate should be from Singapore or willing to visit the country, preferably during late evenings or Sundays when the poster has more free time. The poster is open to advice and suggests setting up profiles on Date in Asia, PinaLove, Tinder, and WeChat to increase chances of meeting suitable women. When searching for potential companions, it's recommended to focus on Singapore-based women first, using the "LIKE" button to narrow down options. Engaging in conversations and transitioning to messaging apps like WeChat or WhatsApp can help build connections. The poster also suggests being prepared to meet women during the day or evening during the week and having a few lined up for Sundays. ### Looking for casual encounters in Singapore, consider online platforms such as Tinder and WeChat to connect with women who may be open to meeting up. Be cautious of individuals who might be sex workers or scams, and prioritize focusing on potential non-pros before your arrival. Online research can help you identify willing girls, but exercise caution when approaching women online. People on this forum have been discussing a popular nightlife spot in Singapore, Orchard Towers, but the topic keeps getting shut down. One user asked about online options that offer high-end companionship at affordable prices, but others refused to provide any information. A few posters mentioned that there aren't many alternatives left in Singapore's red-light district due to government crackdowns. Someone mentioned tons of online platforms offering 90-minute GFE (Girlfriend Experience) sessions for under SGD 120, claiming it's better than visiting Geylang. However, another user questioned the usefulness of this information and asked what specific online platforms were being referred to. Others chimed in, suggesting that users check the rules before accusing others of making things up. A poster mentioned that Orchard Towers has been a thorn in the government's side for some time, but it's since closed down. Another user expressed disappointment with the current nightlife scene in Singapore, calling it dry and boring. They suggested visiting Geylang or trying out online options, but warned that these may be pricey. Someone asked if others knew about the prices before buying into a service, while another poster expressed gratitude for being able to identify Orchard Towers as the subject of their previous questions. Overall, the conversation is centered around the decline of red-light districts in Singapore and the lack of information sharing on online platforms. Given text has been paraphrased We are referring to Brix on a more substantial level, now discussing significant financial matters.
