John Mark Comer's official companion guide to Practicing the Way Course is an eight-session introduction to following Jesus in modern times. The course, available online for free, aims to lay a foundation for lifelong apprenticeship with Jesus. This full-color companion guide helps practitioners practice, reflect, and dialogue with their community while walking through the Course together. Inside, you'll find resources like: - Helpful tips to maximize each session - Supplemental materials for deeper exploration after each session - Real-life exercises to put each session into practice - Additional prayers and liturgies John Mark Comer is the founding pastor of Bridgetown Church in Portland, Oregon, a teacher, writer with Practicing the Way, and New York Times bestselling author of multiple books. Practicing the Way is a nonprofit creating spiritual formation resources for churches and small groups to learn about becoming lifelong apprentices of Jesus. Given article text here When it comes to following Jesus, many people see it as a journey or a path that one must undertake, rather than a choice to be made in the present moment. Unlike Sarapion, who did not retreat into the desert but instead stayed firmly planted in the noise and chaos of urban life, individuals can choose to immerse themselves in spiritual practice and formation. This Course is designed to guide individuals on their spiritual journey, helping them get unstuck or moving forward on their path. The ultimate goal is to train participants to live as apprentices of Jesus, becoming like him and doing what he did. To truly absorb the insights gained from your experiences, take some time to ponder on them. Questions designed for reflection can be found at the end of each section in this Guide.Join forces: When you reunite as a group, start by exchanging your personal reflections with one another. This collaboration is vital because we all need each other's support and understanding to navigate life under God and make sense of our individual stories. For larger groups, consider dividing into smaller clusters to ensure everyone has an opportunity to share their thoughts.
