Tryst makes it simple for users to find providers nearby or traveling to their area. When a user first starts using Tryst, even without creating an account, they can set basic information to customize what's shown to them. This includes setting preferences that will change who appears on the home page and influence more specific search results. To set these preferences, users can visit the homepage and click on the Change link in the footer or on any specific search. They can also modify their preference at any time by clicking the Change button next to their current preferences shown on the homepage. On Tryst, searching for a provider is easy, thanks to various filters that allow users to find specific providers based on location, gender, and more. Filters include location with a distance limit of 100km/60mi, which also includes providers touring in the area within 30 days when performing the search. Other filters are available for the provider's gender, keywords used in their profile, service type, availability, hourly rates, and catered genders. The text then shifts to describing a facial treatment offered by Dermalogica called Eros Ultra Calming Facial, designed to reduce redness, irritation, and inflammation caused by rosacea, sensitivity, or environmental stressors. This treatment features soothing botanicals and barrier-repairing ingredients that calm and protect the skin without causing further irritation. The passage concludes with a testimonial for a provider named Simone, describing her as warm, accessible, and intent on creating trust and good boundaries. The testimonial praises Simone's ability to create a welcoming and loving space for users to discover themselves more deeply and awaken dormant energies.
