Aashiqui 2 to be a new story, no sequel or remake: Bhushan Kumar Gulshan Kumar's father confirms, "It is an entirely different take on young love" ========== The upcoming film Aashiqui 2 will not be related to the story or music of the 1990 film Aashiqui. Co-producer Bhushan Kumar has confirmed that it will build the franchise and will have a new storyline. The film will be directed by Mohit Suri and will star Aditya Roy Kapoor and Shraddha Kapoor in lead roles. Kumar's father, Gulshan Kumar, had made a pact with Mahesh Bhatt to make a follow-up film after Aashiqui's release in 1990. However, the upcoming film will be an entirely different take on young love. The soundtrack of Aashiqui 2 will not feature any of the old music from the original film, and it will have a new composer, Jeet Ganguly. ========== Rahul's dream of turning Aarohi into a singing sensation seemed to be on track until he was attacked and injured, forcing him to leave her side. Aarohi, unaware of Rahul's condition, returned to her old job in a bar, much to the dismay of her family. Meanwhile, Rahul recovered from his injuries and resumed his search for Aarohi, only to find that she had begun performing again due to financial difficulties. Rahul, determined to make things right, fired their manager Vivek and began training Aarohi once more. Their efforts paid off, and Aarohi signed a music contract, becoming a successful playback singer. However, as their happiness grew, so did the rumors of Rahul's dependency on alcohol, causing him to become aggressive and violent. Aarohi, torn between her love for Rahul and her career, attempted to rehabilitate him, but ultimately had to sacrifice her singing status to save him. When Rahul's addiction worsened, he became a burden to Aarohi, leading him to contemplate suicide. Devastated by his death, Aarohi returned to her music career, signing her name as "Aarohi Rahul Jaykar" in tribute to their love.Aashiqui 2 was intended to revive the era of melodious film music, much like its predecessor 22 years prior. The project's directorship changed hands twice before settling on Mohit Suri. Initially, Vishal Mahadkar was approached but dropped out due to other commitments. After a nationwide talent hunt, Aditya Roy Kapur and Shraddha Kapoor were cast in the lead roles, with Bhatt expressing confidence in their abilities. The film's producers aimed to introduce fresh faces in key roles, but faced difficulties attracting established actors. Suri discovered Kapur through pictures and personal interactions, making him the perfect fit for his role. Following a successful talent hunt, Kapoor was signed on as the female lead, with Bhatt praising her talent for the demanding part. Suri stated that he deliberately chose new actors to create an authentic experience, despite initial doubts from others. Principal photography took place in late 2012, with filming locations including Goa, Mumbai, and Cape Town. Incidents during filming, such as Kapur receiving burns on his hand, brought attention to the project's challenges. Aashiqui 2's soundtrack received widespread acclaim upon its release, with "Tum Hi Ho" becoming a massive hit among audiences. The song garnered significant online attention and helped in marketing the film. A promotional music event featured Suri and Kapoor recreating scenes from earlier films.Aashiqui 2 collected ₹470 million in its second week, taking its two-week box office collections to ₹470 million. The film maintained steady weekday collections and rose to ₹635 million after three weeks. It had the highest third-week collections of 2013 at that time.Shreya Ghoshal wins Screen Award for Aashiqui 2, Aditya Roy Kapur and Shraddha Kapoor nominated for various categories. ========== Shreya Ghoshal won the Screen Award for her music in the film Sunn Raha Hai.
