Continue

Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format for any purpose, even commercially. Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially. The licensor cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the license terms. Attribution — You must give appropriate credit , provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made . You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use. ShareAlike — If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. No additional restrictions — You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits. You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation . No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material. Surfing competition Billabong Pipeline MastersCurrent season, competition or edition: Billabong Pipeline Masters 2022SportSurfingCountryHawaiiMost recentchampion(s) Barron Mamiya (men) Tyler Wright (women)Most titles Kelly Slater (men) (8) Tyler Wright (women) (2) The Pipe Pro is an event in surfing held annually at Banzai Pipeline in Oahu, Hawaii. It was established in 1971 and has been sponsored by Yeti Coolers, who have a three year partnership in place, which began in 2023.[1] The event attracts the top 34 surfers from The World Surf League (WSL) as well as 32 surfers who compete in walk-on trials. Until 2019, the event was the final leg of the Triple Crown of Surfing and the final event on the WSL Championship Tour.[2] Starting with the 2021 season (December 2020), the event is now the opening event of a 2020–21 competition season. In 2022, the event underwent major scheduling, naming, and invitation rules changes.[3][4] Year Men's Winner Women's Winner 1971 Jeff Hakman 1972 Gerry Lopez 1973 Gerry Lopez (2) 1974 Jeff Crawford 1975 Shaun Tomson 1976 Rory Russell 1977 Rory Russell (2) 1978 Larry Blair 1979 Larry Blair (2) 1980 Mark Richards 1981 Simon Anderson 1982 Michael Ho 1983 Dane Kealoha 1984 Joey Buran 1985 Mark Occhilupo 1986 Derek Ho 1987 Tom Carroll 1988 Robbie Page 1989 Gary Elkerton 1990 Tom Carroll (2) 1991 Tom Carroll (3) 1992 Kelly Slater 1993 Derek Ho (2) 1994 Kelly Slater (2) 1995 Kelly Slater (3) 1996 Kelly Slater (4) 1997 John Gomes 1998 Jake Paterson 1999 Kelly Slater (5) 2000 Rob Machado 2001 Bruce Irons 2002 Andy Irons 2003 Andy Irons (2) 2004 Jamie O'Brien 2005 Andy Irons (3) 2006 Andy Irons (4) 2007 Bede Durbidge 2008 Kelly Slater (6) 2009 Taj Burrow 2010 Jeremy Flores 2011 Kieren Perrow 2012 Joel Parkinson 2013 Kelly Slater (7) 2014 Julian Wilson 2015 Adriano de Souza 2016 Michel Bourez 2017 Jérémy Florès (2) 2018 Gabriel Medina 2019 Italo Ferreira 2020 [a] John John Florence Tyler Wright 2022 [b] Balaram Stack Molly Picklum 2023 [c] John John Florence Moana Jones Wong 2024 [d] Nathan Florence Erin Brooks ^ Part of 2021 season, held in December 2020 ^ December 2022 ^ December 2023 ^ December 2024 ^ Hernandez, Magda (2023-01-23). "YETI Becomes Official Drinkware & Cooler of the World Surf League". Shop-Eat-Surf. Retrieved 2024-02-07. ^ "2015 Men's Samsung Galaxy Championship Tour". World Surf League. Retrieved 30 August 2015. ^ Rielly 2023. ^ "Things you need to know about the 2021 WSL surfing season(...)". Olympic Channel. December 3, 2020. Retrieved December 21, 2020. Rielly, Derek (2023-11-26). "How Vans and WSL destroyed surfing's most prestigious cultural relic The Pipeline Masters". BeachGrit. Retrieved 2024-04-12. [1] [2] [3] Official website ^ ^ ^ Retrieved from " Click here to read our Vans Pipe Masters preview, and follow along below for updates from everything happening on the beach today. This post will be updated with new insights and play-by-play every few minutes. While there's currently no livestream, you can follow along on social media via @vanssurf, @surfline, and @stab. You can also click here for the heat updates, and here for the full leaderboard Individual waves in a Hawaiian swell can be estimated to travel at around 3x the swell period, according to Sean Collins. So, a 17-second swell like the one which arrived yesterday evening should be moving at about 51 Nautical miles per hour — or 94 kmh. These semi-truck speeds would explain why the swell size and angle seems to alter so rapidly here on the North Shore — from flat yesterday morning, to 20-foot last night, to still scary but manageable today. This mornings' trade wind wobble looks quite similar to one sunrise last year, before some second reef sets arrived emphatically and Harry Bryant stuffed a 7'2 Gravelle into the belly of a 30-point dragon. We'll see how things evolve today. Event starts at 8am Hawaii time, women start first — refresh this page for updates. For reference: The draw features 40 men and 20 women, with Hawaiians making up about half the roster.Heats of four, each heat surfs three times. The four surfers with the highest-scoring waves across those heats will make it to the final. Each heat will rotate between morning, midday, and afternoon to surf in all conditions and maximise their chances.  Heats are 30 minutes, and each wave is scored out of 30 (10 points each from three judges). No priority, and only your top three waves from your first three heats counts.  40-minute, four-person final, where only the top two waves are considered. Vans will announce any priority restrictions for the final, based on conditions. The total prize purse is $300,000, with the distribution on the mens and womens side as follows: 1st Place: $75k 2nd Place: $35k 3rd Place: $25k 4th Place: $15k Here's the heat draw for those wondering. Click here for the full list. Women's Heat One, Round One — Caity Simmers (USA), Moana Jones-Wong (HAW), Zoe McDougall (HAW), Chesney Guinotte (HAW) "I feel like I'm the compiest one here," laughed Caity Simmers a couple days ago, as we bobbed in the water at small (and less than crowded) Backdoor. "Usually, everyone from the comp would be out here surfing before the event, but it's been so mellow. It's kinda backwards from a CT comp. Usually I'm the least tryhard… now I feel like the most." Along with Moana Jones-Wong and local grom Chesney Guinotte, Caity will be paddling out this morning with one of her best friends — Zoe McDougall. "If a good Backdoor wave comes to you and Caity, who's going?" I asked Zoe, last night. "Well," Zoe chuckled. "I'm going. She's staying at my house, so she better let me go." As the four women drift through the longshore sweep into a trade-ruffled lineup, the sun continues it's ascent over the Waianae mountains, not quite illuminating the stiff bones of the Pipeline reef. Moana packs the first left, a head high-wobbler, to no avail. After a long wait, Caity follows with a backhand snap, and Moana packs another clamshell. Zoe and Chesney both manage half-turns. Finally, nearly 20 minutes into the heat, the first rideable tube wraps onto the Backdoor reef, with Caity fending off Moana and slinging herself behind the foaming curtain for a 16/30. Despite an airdrop and a backup from Caity, at heat's end, the 16 is the only consequential score. During the heat draw the other night, there was a clear sentiment that being in the first heats of the day was a curse. Looks like that perspective is holding true so far. View this post on Instagram A post shared by Vans Surf (@vanssurf) Women's Heat Two, Round One — Vaihitimahana Inso (HAW), Erin Brooks (CAN), Sophie Bell (ZAF), Eweleiʻula Wong (HAW) Following her Fiji event triumph, Erin Brooks' CT heat win percentage is currently 100%. Not bad for a 17-year old. "I dunno what to expect next year," she smiled yesterday. "I just hope the waves are good and I get to surf a lot. I hope I make the cut so I can surf Trestles. I've never surfed there with nobody out." In fact, the first 25 minutes of her heat today looks a bit like Trestles, with a multitude of turn worthy lefts slipping through the lineup. Erin and Ewe both tee off on a few, before a solid peak swing through from the north. The left warps and clamps on Vahitimahana, as South African Sophie Bell steams off the bottom with purpose into the right — conjuring a collective breath from the audience, and releasing it in a cacophony of cheers as she doggy-doors out the bottom. 22.5 points, second on the leaderboard (but only because Caity had a marginal backup score). Sophie was one of the few women in the draw looking for rights out at Pipe last night, as the swell peaked. She's also been getting coaching from Nathan Fletcher. Reap what you sow, etc… Sophie Bell, on the best wave of the morning thus far. Women's Heat Three, Round One — Luana Silva (BRA), Coco Ho (HAW), Sierra Kerr (AUS), Milla Coco-Brown (AUS) So far, the only real scores have come from Backdoor waves. Given the 350-degree North angle of the swell, makes sense. 10 minutes into a slow affair, with the sun still rising into a sky pockmarked with stretching clouds, Coco Ho picks a breathing Backdoor funnel, lifts herself high over the flailing lipline, and drops her knee to slide into daylight. Unfortunately, the backwash combined with the Aints bowl clamp section has other plans, and mashes her to the deck of her board. She gets a 6/30 for her trouble (traditionally a 2/10). View this post on Instagram A post shared by Stab Magazine (@stab) 15 minutes into Heat Three, no waves of significant leaderboard impact. Luana Silva forces a duo of sketchy hacks on shallow Backdoor sections, and Sierra Kerr collects an 8/30 for a chandeliering head dip, also going right. 3/3 tubes made so far going right. "No, I don't post on TikTok," laughed Milla Coco-Brown for her Stab Interview. "I can't deal with the dancing chicks and guys thinking they're really hot, doing all the selfie stuff."  Her Stab Edit Of The Year entry was a powerful announcement, suggesting that the 17-year old is very much a part of the arriving entourage of fearless young women. The force with which she blasted her fins into a Backdoor end section just now continued the theme. 15-points for one turn. Turn of the morning thus far from Milla. Women's Heat Four, Round One — Kirra Pinkerton (USA), Anne Dos Santos (BRA), Keala Tomoda-Bannert (HAW), Maluhia Kinimaka (HAW) Oahu gets anywhere from 19 to 236 inches a year, depending on storm tracks and climate pressure. A few minutes into Heat Four, a flurry of rain flashes begins adding to that tally, with the ensuing wind-front worsening already mediocre conditions. Faceplants follow. Kirra Pinkerton confidently packs a solid closeout right, no questions asked. Respect. 9/30. Currently, seven of the Top 10 women are 20 or younger. Women's Heat Five, Round One — Bettylou Sakura Johnson (HAW), Vahine Fierro (PYF), Nora Liotta (HAW), Kiara Goold (PYF) After coaching Kauli Vaast to his Olympic Gold Medal, Jeremy Flores is currently down on the beach coaching both of the Tahitian women in this heat. The sun returns, but the lineup is dismal and quiet. "That's my role now, as a manager and coach on the French team, to get into the head of Vahine (Fierro) and Kauli (Vaast) and let them know that it's us against the world, that we're not scared of anyone, we got this," Jeremy Flores told us a few weeks ago. "That's been the attitude the last few years, and it's paying off." Nora Liotta, a last minute replacement for Pua DeSoto, startst the scoring with a mini-turn for a 3. Bettylou and Vahine follow with turns, but nothing happens in the heat that alters the leaderboard. 30-minute standby before deciding on the mens round. Defending World Champion Caity Simmers currently leads the women's leaderboard with 26.8 total points. Photo by Brent Bielmann. See more on: Pipe, vans, Vans Pipe Masters Finals Day of the #VansPipeMasters was greeted by pumping Pipeline, including moments of insanity and perfection. Men's Round 3 took the water first in 8 – 12 foot waves. There were massive scores, massive wipeouts, huge shakeups on the leaderboard, and a perfect 30-point ride. Upon completion of the round, the Women's Final and Men's Final played out back-to-back to determine who would earn the coveted title of the 2024 Vans Pipe Master. Congratulations to this years champions, Nathan Florence and Erin Brooks! Enjoy sharper detail, more accurate color, lifelike lighting, believable backgrounds, and more with our new model update. Your generated images will be more polished than ever.See What's NewExplore how consumers want to see climate stories told today, and what that means for your visuals.Download Our Latest VisualGPS ReportData-backed trends. Generative AI demos. Answers to your usage rights questions. Our original video podcast covers it all—now on demand.Watch NowEnjoy sharper detail, more accurate color, lifelike lighting, believable backgrounds, and more with our new model update. Your generated images will be more polished than ever.See What's NewExplore how consumers want to see climate stories told today, and what that means for your visuals.Download Our Latest VisualGPS ReportData-backed trends. Generative AI demos. Answers to your usage rights questions. Our original video podcast covers it all—now on demand.Watch NowEnjoy sharper detail, more accurate color, lifelike lighting, believable backgrounds, and more with our new model update. Your generated images will be more polished than ever.See What's NewExplore how consumers want to see climate stories told today, and what that means for your visuals.Download Our Latest VisualGPS ReportData-backed trends. Generative AI demos. Answers to your usage rights questions. Our original video podcast covers it all—now on demand.Watch Now Finals Day of the #VansPipeMasters was greeted by pumping Pipeline, including moments of insanity and perfection. Men's Round 3 took the water first in 8 – 12 foot waves. There were massive scores, massive wipeouts, huge shakeups on the leaderboard, and a perfect 30-point ride. Upon completion of the round, the Women's Final and Men's Final played out back-to-back to determine who would earn the coveted title of the 2024 Vans Pipe Master. Congratulations to this years champions, Nathan Florence and Erin Brooks!  Erin Brooks (CAN): 37.80 points ($75,000) Caity Simmers (USA): 22.00 points ($50,000) Betty Lou Sakura-Johnson (HAW): 18.50 points ($25,000) Moana Jones Wong (HAW): 16.50 points ($15,000) Nathan Florence (HAW): 42.00 points ($75,000) Al Cleland Jr. (MEX): 21.70 points ($50,000) Koa Smith (HAW): 7.70 points ($25,000) Ivan Florence (HAW): 0.00 points ($15,000) Stay updated with the latest Vans Pipe Masters action by following @Vans and @VansSurf on Instagram. For in-depth coverage and all the surf highlights, visit Stab Magazine Vans, the original action sports brand, is excited to announce the upcoming Vans Pipe Masters, scheduled for December 8 to 20, 2024, on the legendary North Shore of Oahu. As a brand dedicated to fostering progress and celebrating the free-spirited mindset of youth culture, Vans proudly supports the Vans Pipe Masters-a platform that showcases the next generation of athletes who are redefining surfing and its cultural impact. The 2024 Vans Pipe Masters will showcase an elite field of both men's and women's surfers, all handpicked by Vans and officially sanctioned by the World Surf League (WSL). This year, Vans is thrilled to feature the artwork of Muhammad Fatchurofi, a talented illustrator based in Semarang, Indonesia, who will bring a distinctive artistic flair to the event. Last year, local legends John Florence and Moana Jones-Wong triumphed at the Vans Pipe Masters, highlighting the remarkable talent of the North Shore. Vans is dedicated to supporting grassroots Hawaiian organizations, including Na Kama Kai, Sustainable Coastlines of Hawai'i, and the North Shore Community Land Trust. In honoring the legacy of Hawaiian surfers on the world stage, Vans is excited to announce that half of this year's invitees will be residents of Hawaii and Native Hawaiians. Vans is dedicated to promoting equality in surfing by offering equal prize money for both men and women. With a total prize purse of $300,000, surfers from around the world-including notable international and Hawaiian athletes like Imaikalani DeVault, Puamakamae DeSoto, Bella Kenworthy, Molly Picklum, Noa Deane, Balaram Stack, Mason Ho, Makana Pang, Nathan Florence, Vaihitimahana Inso, Tosh Tudor, Caity Simmers, and Harry Bryant-will have the opportunity to compete for the prestigious Vans Pipe Masters trophy. The Vans Pipe Masters features an innovative leaderboard format, where surfers participate in three rounds, aiming to achieve their three highest-scoring rides. The top four women and men surfers will then advance to the finals for a chance to claim the coveted trophy. As a brand deeply rooted in youth culture, Vans recognizes its responsibility to protect the surfing environment for future generations. To support this mission, Vans is once again partnering with Sustainable Coastlines Hawai'i for the event's on-site waste diversion program. With over eight years of collaboration, Sustainable Coastlines Hawai'i helps Vans increase environmental and social responsibility at its events. Thanks to this partnership, the 2023 Vans Pipe Masters successfully diverted 1,848 pounds, or 80%, of all waste generated on-site from landfills and incineration. Explore the exclusive Vans Pipe Masters collection featuring limited-edition apparel and accessories. Available now at vans.com. TOP PICKS TO WIN THE VANS PIPE MASTERS December 8 to 20, 2024 Moana Jones-Wong and John John Florence won the 2023 Pipe Masters. Photo: Screenshot//WSL Vans has officially announced the upcoming 2024 Pipe Masters. Of course, being the pre-eminent event in competitive surfing, it wasn't exactly a mystery as to where and when it will run, but a press release from the WSL provided some key details on the upcoming annual North Shore specialty invitational event. Since 2022, the Pipe Masters has featured a unique, non-elimination leaderboard format. In it, surfers participate in three rounds of heats, in which the three highest-scoring waves are counted. From there, the top four women and men will advance to the finals. This year, the winners will be awarded from total prize purse of $300,000, with men and women receiving equal prize money. The competition will feature a roster handpicked by Vans and officially sanctioned by the World Surf League, but the full list of surfers is not available as of yet. However, the announcement confirmed that it will include Imaikalani DeVault, Puamakamae DeSoto, Bella Kenworthy, Molly Picklum, Noa Deane, Balaram Stack, Mason Ho, Makana Pang, Nathan Florence, Vaihitimahana Inso, Tosh Tudor, Caity Simmers, and Harry Bryant. The 2024 Pipe Masters is scheduled for December 8-20, 2024, at Pipeline, on Oahu's North Shore. Stay updated with the latest Vans Pipe Masters action by following @Vans and @VansSurf on Instagram. For in-depth coverage and all the surf highlights, visit Stab Magazine Costa Mesa, CALIF. (November 18, 2024) - Vans, the original action sports brand, is excited to announce the upcoming Vans Pipe Masters, scheduled for December 8 to 20, 2024, on the legendary North Shore of Oahu. As a brand dedicated to fostering progress and celebrating the free-spirited mindset of youth culture, Vans proudly supports the Vans Pipe Masters-a platform that showcases the next generation of athletes who are redefining surfing and its cultural impact. The 2024 Vans Pipe Masters will showcase an elite field of both men's and women's surfers, all handpicked by Vans and officially sanctioned by the World Surf League (WSL). This year, Vans is thrilled to feature the artwork of Muhammad Fatchurofi, a talented illustrator based in Semarang, Indonesia, who will bring a distinctive artistic flair to the event. Last year, local legends John Florence and Moana Jones-Wong triumphed at the Vans Pipe Masters, highlighting the remarkable talent of the North Shore. Vans is dedicated to supporting grassroots Hawaiian organizations, including Na Kama Kai, Sustainable Coastlines of Hawai'i, and the North Shore Community Land Trust. In honoring the legacy of Hawaiian surfers on the world stage, Vans is excited to announce that half of this year's invitees will be residents of Hawaii and Native Hawaiians. Vans is dedicated to promoting equality in surfing by offering equal prize money for both men and women. With a total prize purse of $300,000, surfers from around the world-including notable international and Hawaiian athletes like Imaikalani DeVault, Puamakamae DeSoto, Bella Kenworthy, Molly Picklum, Noa Deane, Balaram Stack, Mason Ho, Makana Pang, Nathan Florence, Vaihitimahana Inso, Tosh Tudor, Caity Simmers, and Harry Bryant-will have the opportunity to compete for the prestigious Vans Pipe Masters trophy. The Vans Pipe Masters features an innovative leaderboard format, where surfers participate in three rounds, aiming to achieve their three highest-scoring rides. The top four women and men surfers will then advance to the finals for a chance to claim the coveted trophy. As a brand deeply rooted in youth culture, Vans recognizes its responsibility to protect the surfing environment for future generations. To support this mission, Vans is once again partnering with Sustainable Coastlines Hawai'i for the event's on-site waste diversion program. With over eight years of collaboration, Sustainable Coastlines Hawai'i helps Vans increase environmental and social responsibility at its events. Thanks to this partnership, the 2023 Vans Pipe Masters successfully diverted 1,848 pounds, or 80%, of all waste generated on-site from landfills and incineration. Explore the exclusive Vans Pipe Masters collection featuring limited-edition apparel and accessories. Available now at vans.com.

- more or less worksheets
- zulayeti
- https://assets.website-files.com/6859ddea3cea314eb46861de/685b35cf40e6e0b1fec43726_jerosedo.pdf
- nitate
- https://assets.website-files.com/6859f0146daf2fa37b92cac5/685b22d27b559ce03a988f3e_8249642238.pdf