Miss france 2025.

With great honor, I take on the role of President of Miss France while continuing to serve as producer of the Miss France election, and I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to Alexia Laroche-Joubert for her trust. I have a profound respect for the work done by Genevive and Louis de Fontenay, and continued by Sylvie Tellier, which will enable me to ensure the evolution of the Miss France brand to make it shine in France and internationally. Miss France is a long history. 15 years ago, I had the chance to produce the Miss France 2008 election. Today with more than 10 editions produced, this event is an universe I am very attached to. Every year, it's with enthusiasm and determination that I strive to offer viewers a real show in prime time. The success of Miss France is due to its strong regional anchorage and the delegations that bring this organization to life. Because Miss France is a true family that allows all women to share their story and have an impact on personal, professional, and social levels. It's a competition that embodies the dream, success, and magic for millions of French people. I wish to all these women who choose to register for this incredible adventure that will change their destiny forever. Over the years, we've seen young women grow alongside us. We're proud of all the Miss France titles won by today's women, who are now businesswomen, doctors, actresses, animators, or even film directors - strong, inspiring, and audacious women.Candidates for Miss France 2025, including Anglique Angarni-Filopon, the winner from Martinique, and her four runners-up, were announced. The ceremony was historic, marking the first time a candidate from Martinique won the title. Anglique expressed gratitude and emotion upon receiving the crown, saying it's an honor to represent France. She highlighted the importance of inspiring young generations and emphasized that anyone can achieve their goals regardless of age. Other notable moments included a ballet performance by the five finalists, a lively dance routine by the 15 semi-finalists, and a tango-inspired segment featuring all the contestants.Les Miss France 2025 sont prtes faire leur apparition au grand jour.
