The 2002 film "28 Days Later" directed by Danny Boyle was a groundbreaking post-apocalyptic horror movie that has become a classic in the genre. The film tells the story of Jim, a bicycle courier who awakens from a coma to find London deserted and overrun by infected people. Starring Cillian Murphy as Jim, the movie also features Naomie Harris, Christopher Eccleston, Megan Burns, and Brendan Gleeson in supporting roles.The screenplay was written by Alex Garland, who drew inspiration from George A. Romero's "Night of the Living Dead" series and John Wyndham's novel "The Day of the Triffids". The film's atmosphere and soundtrack were praised by critics, with many considering it a game-changer for the horror genre.With a budget of $8 million, "28 Days Later" went on to gross over $84.6 million worldwide, making it one of the most profitable horror films of 2002. Its success led to the creation of two sequels, "28 Weeks Later" and "28 Years Later", with additional sequels currently in development.The film's impact can be seen in its influence on the zombie genre, which was reinvigorated by its fast-running infected characters and character-driven drama. Even today, "28 Days Later" remains a fan favorite, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic when people were looking for inspiration in apocalyptic fiction.Jim wakes up in an empty St Thomas' Hospital to an outbreak. He finds newspapers talking about mass evacuations. After a violent encounter with infected humans, he meets survivors Selena and Mark, who save him from more infected. They travel to his parents' house, where Jim learns they died by suicide. As night falls, the group decides to stay in his parents' house, but the infected break in. In the chaos, Mark gets wounded, and Selena kills him to prevent infection. The survivors then head to Balfron Tower, where they meet Frank, a taxi driver with a young daughter Hannah. They agree to travel together to Manchester, hoping to find safety. When they arrive, however, they find it deserted, except for a dead body that infects Frank. He's killed by soldiers who then take Jim, Selena, and Hannah to a heavily guarded mansion under Major Henry West's command. But the sanctuary turns out to be a trap. The group refuses to participate in West's twisted scheme, so he orders them to be shot. One soldier is killed by his fellow, allowing Jim to escape. As they make their way through the mansion, Jim kills several soldiers and eventually frees Private Mailer, an infected soldier kept captive. Selena saves him from being taken again, but is initially frightened of Jim's behavior. The group then tries to escape in Frank's cab, fighting off more soldiers along the way. In the end, they successfully outsmart West and drive away.The 28 Days Later film cast included notable actors such as Cillian Murphy and Naomie Harris, with relatively unknown actors chosen to maintain the film's suspension of disbelief. Director Danny Boyle had previously worked with writer Alex Garland on The Beach (2000) and was inspired by George A. Romero's zombie films, including Night of the Living Dead (1968). The film's original inspiration came from John Wyndham's novel The Day of the Triffids (1951), but post-apocalyptic themes were emphasized in marketing. Boyle drew on real-life diseases such as Ebola and rabies when creating the Infected characters. Production faced budget constraints, with Christopher Eccleston taking an emergency pay cut.The filmmakers had a limited window of about 45 minutes on Sunday mornings to capture scenes without the public and traffic. They used a Canon XL1 digital video camera, which was more portable than traditional cameras, for most of the film. The M1 motorway scene was filmed during a brief period when a police roadblock slowed down traffic, allowing them to clear the area. For the London scene where Jim walks past an overturned double-decker bus, they placed the bus on its side and removed it within 20 minutes. The crew also managed to secretly place the bus outside Downing Street without permission after being denied by Westminster City Council. Filming was affected by the September 11 attacks, with the parallel between missing persons flyers in the film and real-life events noted by director Boyle. The mansion used in the film was Trafalgar Park near Salisbury, which had minimal set decoration. The old ruins of Waverley Abbey in Surrey served as the setting for an idyllic scene, while the end scenes were filmed around Ennerdale in Cumbria. The production team hired an optometrist to ensure proper use of red contact lenses. When the budget ran out, filming ceased without a satisfactory ending, but after several pitches and audience testing, the studio granted more funding for the final shoot. The DVD extras include three alternative endings, all concluding with Jim's death. One involved him dying from gunshot wounds, another had him dreaming about his accident as he died, while the third showed survivors discovering a research laboratory where Jim undergoes a blood transfusion to save Frank.The score of the film "28 Days Later" was composed by John Murphy, incorporating electric guitar and atmospheric electronic elements. The soundtrack also features tracks from notable artists such as Brian Eno, Grandaddy, and Blue States.
